Jongryn Mo, Chung-In Moon : Democracy and the Korean Economy: Dynamic Relations (Hoover Institution Press Publication) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Democracy and the Korean Economy: Dynamic Relations (Hoover Institution Press Publication):

This book describes and explains the effect democratic change has had on Korean economic policy and its economy. It explains how conflicts over economics have evolved in major policy areas and which economic factors have been important in resolving these conflicts, with a close look at chaebols, their market positions and political influence.

"Hoover Institution Press has brought together some very bright people." About the Author Jongryn Mo is a research fellow at the Hoover Institution. He is also a professor of international political economy at the Graduate School of International Studies, Yonsei University. Before taking that position at Yonsei, he was an assistant professor of government at the University of Texas at Austin. Mo holds a BA in economics from Cornell University, an MS in social sciences from the California Institute of Technology, and a PhD in business from Stanford University.
